Your chance to be heard

This is your chance to get involved in a city-wide discussion, helping us to get to grips with some of the biggest challenges facing York.

We are asking you to shape our response to three major themes for the city – carbon reduction, future transport priorities and York's economy. These policies will shape the way we move around, how we work and lots more about life in York for at least the next decade. You will find more information on each theme in this edition of 'Our City' to help inform your views.

Get involved today

We've tried to make it as easy as possible for all residents to get involved.

- If you're online, you can take one of our online surveys. There's a short one if you only have a few minutes, or a longer one if you've got time to think about things in a bit more detail. There's also a survey just for businesses.
- If you're not online, you can answer all the key questions in the survey starting on page 5.
- You can join the conversation on the council's social media channels – just follow us to get involved.

Help us shape York's future

We want to hear more voices than ever before. We're building networks and inclusive approaches to make sure all residents have a voice, including those with additional accessibility requirements, children and young people, LGBTQ residents, black and minority ethnic people, older people and students across the city. We'll share what you're telling us, so you know what other people in the city think and why we make decisions.

How to have your say

If you have internet access, you can find out more and fill in this survey at york.gov.uk/OurBigConversation

If you do not have access to the internet, you can simply fill out the survey on the following pages. To have your views included we need to receive this Monday by 19th July.

Help Shape the Future of Travel in York

The pandemic has changed many aspects of our lives, not least how and why we travel. These changes, as well as an increased focus on carbon reduction and sustainability, will be at the heart of the development of a new Local Transport Plan (LTP) for York.

Current proposals for the LTP recognise that whilst the plan is taking place in an era of great change, there are some things we know we need to consider.

This includes major schemes such as York Central and York Station Frontage, as well as rules set by regional and central government. The transport plan will play an important role to meet the council's aim to be carbon neutral. by 2030.

The key priorities for the city are:

- reduce congestion on the city's roads,
- improve air quality,
- increase accessibility,
- make it easier for residents and visitors to choose active travel and public transport,
- reduce car use in York, particularly within the city walls and around schools

Help set the direction of travel

Importantly, for the council to create a plan covering at least the next decade we are asking for the views of residents as part of Our Big Conversation.

Carbon reduction – at the heart of York's recovery

In 2019, City of York Council declared a Climate Emergency and set an ambition for York to be a carbon neutral city by 2030.

We recognise the threat of climate change at both a global and local scale, from flooding to farming. We're committed to delivering bold, local climate action to deliver economic and social benefits for all our residents, such as:

- new green jobs in York
- economic savings
- market opportunities
- improved health and well-being for York residents

We have already made an ambitious start to refocus our economy, working with partners to create a clean air zone, developing zero-carbon homes (which also have virtually no heating bills!) and welcoming new electric waste vehicles and a fleet of electric Park & Ride buses. We are also looking at ways we can remove waste and re-use resources at every stage of how we produce and consume things. For the emissions we can't remove we are looking at ways to off-set them through other projects, like tree planting across the region.

Now, as part of 'Our Big Conversation', we want to hear what your ideas are when it comes to tackling the Climate Emergency and achieving our ambition to become a carbonneutral city by 2030.

Share ideas for your city centre

As the city continues its recovery, we are inviting you to help shape a people-focussed, business friendly city centre where people love to spend time, live and work.

York's city centre has been comparatively healthy – with a relatively low number of empty shops, an abundance of family-friendly events, over 8 million visitors a year and a thriving independent sector.

But we are not immune from the challenges facing cities across the country. COVID-19 has increased the pace of change in some areas, like the huge increase in online spending. It has also presented completely new challenges, including the shift to home working and the impact that has on the number of people in the city every day, as well as presenting exciting new opportunities.

We have already seen successes in reopening with the new outdoor seating areas across the city centre, and the plans for world-class public realm on Castle Gateway and Eye of York (the area surrounding Clifford's Tower). We want to know what you love, would like to change and what else you really want to do in the centre of York.

Access to the city centre

Recent changes to the city centre have had an impact on how some residents and businesses can access the city centre. This includes the outdoor seating and extension of pedestrianised streets until 8pm, as well as well as measures to reduce the threat of terrorism.

The council is reviewing how to make sure all residents and businesses can access and enjoy our city centre. We are talking to disabled residents, businesses and delivery drivers, cyclists, taxi drivers and many others to make sure York is accessible and welcoming to all.

You can find a full list of events and opportunities to have your say on our website:

Help shape York's economy

As with many areas of life, the pandemic has impacted our economy. The way we buy things, how and where we work, and the jobs available to people in all sectors have changed forever.

York and its economy is about much more than the city centre. It's about including all our communities, residents and employers, to benefit from the success of the city.

The council is drawing together all the available evidence to create a strategy that makes the most of the things York is great at, keeps the character of our city and helps to create a fairer, more inclusive and greener economy.

As well as talking to businesses, partners and economic experts, the council wants to make sure it understands your views about the local economy, employment and skills and the prospects for you and your family.

Get involved

We are looking to hear from the people who are most affected by the decisions we make, but don't usually get involved in a conversation about economic strategy. Everyone has a right to be heard and we want to hear your views.

So please join the conversation and give all your friends and family a nudge to do the
